We hasten to gratify the Catholic community, and the honestly deluded portion of the public, by announcing the truly joyful intelligence, that Schmoll, the arch-prosecutor of Mr. Wingcohlin, has in an unguarded moment acknowleged the utter falsity of the charge, and disclosed the practices by which he was enabled to succeed in his nefa-

Spankern, Charles Nadler and Conrad Mallinckrodt, stating among other incidental circumstances, that Schmoll had last year epent several months among them, and durthrown off his guard, as we infer, by the fact of his being that you may make use of it according to circumstances."

The letter bore every mark of authenticity and truth. particularly in an accurate reference to individuals, places and occurrences, not apt to be known by strangers at a distance from Evansville. Their offer to verify their statement was at once accepted by the sympathizing friends of Mr. Winzophlin; and the result is, that the duly authenticated affidavits of the four individuals, and of two others, Bliza and Henrich Schweitzer, also Protestants of the same place, have been voluntarily given, sufficient in form and substance, as is conceived, to serve as the basis, for those representing the State of Indiana, to institute procredings to vindicate the insulted dignity of her laws; and they are hereby tendered for that purpose.

These documents are necessarily voluminous, but, at the same time that they shall always remain at the disposal of the public authorities, we will, in the cause of innocence, present a few extracts to show their conclusiveness as against Schmoll, to establish the following points: That Mrs. Schmoll from the first, denied Mr. W.'s criminality, and that Schmoll himself believed him innocent: that the whole tale in regard to her having fainted, as above. was previously fabricated under the advice of a physician of Evansville, and with the aid of a medical book which he furnished for that purpose: that by means alternately of threats and endearments, Schmoll prevailed upon his wife to place her conscience at the disposal of the conthe consultation of lawyers, although we are constrained to be sceptical of so extravagant an enormity in so elevated a profession, we would believe at least that it can allude only to the one, who is stated in Schweitzer's affidavit to have accompanied her to Cincinnati, and who appalled at the havor there, stated in the same affidavit to have been made of her reputation, and fearing the punishment which threatened him, never returned to Evensville, but ahandoned his cause and his family, and fied to the confines of civilitation : that for the purpose of boltherefore forced to place themselves at his disposal: that
